

Achieving your goals

We all have hopes and dreams for the future but achieving them can sometimes seem out of our reach. If you feel that you do not have the qualifications or skills you need to be able to achieve your goals our advisers can help you to overcome these barriers and give you the confidence and skills you need to see your dreams become reality.

Through our careers and personal development services we can provide support in the following ways:

Talking through your interests and skills to find the type of career which would suit you, including some options which you may not have thought about.

Discussing your choices and how to achieve them - further training, voluntary work, new career direction.

Applying for jobs and training – CVs and application forms.

Interview skills

How to get a promotion

Contact us for more information.

Careergen

This careers advice and guidance service is available to adults and is part of a fee paying service. Experienced careers advisers help and support individuals to make realistic decision about their future. We access interest guides, skills checks and other tools with people using this service. For these people who want and need in depth support we have a psychometric testing service which looks at aptitudes, interest and personality. For more details visit careergen.

Related Links

- careergen

Career advice for professionals