

igen Case Studied NIACE North West Regional Conference

The work igen delivers has been recognised as an example of best practice at the NIACE North West Regional Conference which focused on support literacy, language and numeracy within Integrated Employment and Skills Programmes.

Philip Styan, Assistant Director of igen's Learning and Skills Service presented the work igen is responsible for delivering in Cumbria, Lancashire and North Cheshire, where significant achievements have been made in terms of employability skills and literacy and numeracy qualifications.

The case study provided a valuable resource for delegates to see the positive impact igen is having in the North West and to draw on this to influence their own delivery.

Feedback found that many of the delegates found the case studies to be the most valuable aspect of the day.
